Summary: connections that still need action

These are the connections flagged in red above – a booking or confirmation is required and nothing is on file yet:

- Rome → Civitavecchia transfer (Mon 14 Sep): pickup time still not confirmed by the cruise line/agent.
- Heathrow → Meliá White House transfer (Thu 24 Sep): no airport transfer booked – currently defaults to a self-managed Tube journey.
- Meliá White House → Heathrow transfer (Sun 27 Sep): no transfer mode confirmed for the 7:00pm hotel departure.
- Fiumicino → Republic Hotel transfer (Fri 11 Sep): arranged in principle but no booking reference is on file to confirm it.

Worth a closer look (flagged in amber above) – nothing missing, but tight or worth double-checking:

- Sydney layover on the way out (Thu 10 Sep, ~7 hrs): long wait with nothing booked – worth deciding whether to leave the airport.
- Singapore connection on the way out (Thu 10 Sep, ~2 hrs): changes airline from Qantas to British Airways – confirm baggage is checked through to Rome.
- Heathrow connection on the way out (Fri 11 Sep, ~1 hr 25 min / 85 min): a tight turnaround after a 13+ hour flight. BA's minimum connection time at T5 is 75 minutes, so this clears it – but only by about 10 minutes, with no margin for a late arrival.
- Singapore turnaround on the way home (Mon 28 Sep, ~1 hr 40 min): same flight number (BA15) continuing on to Sydney – confirm whether everyone stays airside or re-clears security.
- UK ETA and passport validity: both have checklists on the website, but this document can't see whether all 4 boxes are ticked – worth a final look before departure.

Everything else – all flights, the cruise booking, the hire car, and the Sydney/Wellington domestic connections – is booked and ticketed with reservation codes on file (see Flight Summary and Hotel Directory on the website for the full reference numbers).
